1 BACKGROUND INFORMATION

1.1 Country overview

Cambodia is a Southeast Asian country with an estimated population of 16.7M. Its capital is Phnom Penh. The country is a constitutional monarchy with two legislative houses.

King Sihamoni became king in October 2004 after his father, King Sihanouk, abdicated. Hun Sen is the prime minister, and has been in power in various coalitions since 1985.

Over the two decades before COVID-19 struck in 2020, Cambodia blossomed economically. Having reached lower middle-income status in 2015, it set its sights on attaining upper middle-income status by 2030. Thanks to garment exports and tourism, Cambodia's economy grew at an average annual rate of 7.7 percent between 1998 and 2019, making it one of the fastest-growing economies in the world. Cambodia's economy is recovering from the COVID-19 related slowdown, boosted by resilient exports. However, the country faces global economic headwinds as world trade growth slows.

Inflation is rising in Cambodia, as elsewhere, and is particularly harmful to poor households, some of whom are forced to reduce food consumption and withdraw children from school. This could have long-term effects on human capital, causing losses in worker productivity and welfare, and disparities in income.¹ Cambodia has made considerable strides in improving health outcomes, early childhood development, and primary education in rural areas. Life expectancy at birth and maternal, under-five, and infant mortality rates have been improved significantly between 2000 and 2021. Despite this progress, human capital indicators lag other lower middle-income countries. In 2020, a child born in Cambodia would be expected to be only 49 percent as productive when grown as she or he could be if she or he enjoyed full quality education, good health, and proper nutrition during childhood. In the 2021-2022 academic year, net enrollment rates for primary, lower secondary, and upper secondary education (both public and private) reached 93 percent, 46.7 percent, and 28.6 percent, respectively.

Key reforms are needed for Cambodia to sustain pro-poor growth, foster competitiveness, sustainably manage natural resource wealth, and improve access to and quality of public services. Cambodia continues to have a serious infrastructure gap and would benefit from greater connectivity and investments in rural and urban infrastructure. Further diversification of the economy will require fostering entrepreneurship, expanding the use of technology, and building new skills to address emerging labor market needs. Accountable and responsive public institutions will also be critical. Boosting investments in human capital will be of utmost importance to achieve Cambodia's ambitious goal of reaching middle-income status by 2030.²

1.2 Sector situation

Cambodia has a number of social insurance, social assistance and labour market programmes in place to reduce poverty and support vulnerable groups but their coverage is low and provision is highly fragmented. Social insurance does not cover all formal workers equally and it is non-existent for those working informally. Private sector workers benefit from health insurance and injury insurance, but not from a statutory pension arrangement. On the other hand, the public sector has access to pension rights, disability and survivor benefits but health insurance provision is at a very early stage. Unemployment insurance does not exist for either group. Moreover, the current pension benefits for civil servants and the military run on a non-contributory basis, making them not financially sustainable. Cambodia has achieved improvements in health provision, particularly among the poor. Yet coverage gap persists. The largest programme in terms of coverage is the Health Equity Funds (HEF), which benefits at least 2 million poor and vulnerable Cambodians. However, even for those covered by HEF, non-financial barriers remain; as a result only 26% of HEF beneficiaries access public health care services. The Royal Government of Cambodia has adopted its first Social Protection Policy Framework in 2017 covering the period 2016-2025. This lays the foundation for an integrated social protection system to ensure social protection as a right for all Khmer citizens. It sets out an ambitious agenda to expand coverage and improve co-ordination between social assistance, social insurance and labour market initiatives³.

1.3 Role of partner institution in the sector

The General Secretariat of the National Social Protection Council, under the Ministry of Economy and Finance, is the body in charge of the technical functions of the NSPC. This last one is the key actor responsible for the overall coordination and steering on the development of various social protection strategies and policies. In particular, it is in charge of the regulatory functions and supervision through the newly established Social Security Regulator – SSR, of national social security funds. In November 2019, the Law on Social Security Schemes was promulgated, establishing the Social Security Regulator (SSR) functions and responsibilities. The National Social Security Fund (NSSF) remains the unique operator in charge of implementing the social security schemes under the supervision and regulation of the SSR. Three schemes are deployed: health insurance scheme, employment injury scheme, pension scheme.

The SSR indicated a lack of technical knowledge and guidelines to fulfil its functions and mandate as supervisor of the NSSF. SOCIEUX+ will support the SSR in capacity building of its staff in operational and administrative matters. The operational cycle of a social protection scheme includes the core administrative steps of: 1) registration, 2) assessment of eligibility, 3) enrolment for benefits, 4) payment of benefits, 5) keeping systems up-to-date, 6) appeals and complaints.

A social security organization fulfils its mission if it: collects the correct amount of contributions when due (or if contributions are collected by another organization, monitors the process to ensure that the amounts received are correct), pays benefits to the correct people in the correct amounts at the right time, undertakes these operations with a reasonable level of administrative costs. In its day-to-day work, the organization must have the administrative machinery to achieve these objectives. In its supervisory role, the SSR needs to have the information to judge whether the objectives are being achieved, so that it can take or recommend any necessary corrective action.

2 ACTION DESCRIPTION

2.1 Overall objective

☑ Institutional capacities of employment, labour and social protection institutions are strengthened and reinforced.

2.2 Specific objective (s) (purpose)

- S. 1: To build key performance indicators to monitor the NSSF
- S. 2: To operationalize the supervision function of the SSR

2.3 Expected results

- R. 1: The SSR staff acknowledges principles of supervision of administrative operations of social security schemes
- R. 2: Objectives and targets for services provided by the social security schemes are identified

2.4 Final deliverables

3 METHODOLOGY

³ Social Protection System Review \(SPSR\) of Cambodia... in 60 seconds - OECD

3.1 General methodology (of the action)

This action will be implemented in two activities. Both activities will be conducted on site, in Phnom Penh. They will contain a preparatory phase, after which experts will be in a position to produce a methodological note, detailing the working approach, and a mission agenda. After his preparation, experts will travel to Phnom Penh to meet SSR staff and engage in two week long exchanges with dedicated SSR staff. The experts will be charged in developing a methodology to develop peer-to-peer exchanges with the SSR staff and they way they envisage to attain the objectives of the activities; to define principles of supervision of administrative operations of social security schemes as well as objectives and targets for services provided by the social security schemes.

3.2 Planned activities (work plan of the action)

- Activity 1 – Principles of supervision of administrative operations of social security schemes
- Activity 2 – Identifying objectives and targets for services provided

The present terms of reference cover the services expected for activities of the above work plan:

- Gender equality;
- Good governance;
- Human rights (including rights of children, people living with disabilities, vulnerable groups and minorities); and,
- Social and economic inclusion of vulnerable groups.

4.1 Tasks

Mobilised experts for this activity will be mandated to, in partnership with the SSR, lay down the principles of supervision and monitoring of administrative operations of the NSSF's performance of the three schemes it implements (health insurance scheme, employment injury scheme, pension scheme). The experts' interaction with the SSR will focus on developing the principles and modalities for ensuring a proper supervision of administrative operations of the social security scheme's management. The strategic and macro-policy issues (determining the social protection structure) and institutional arrangements (deciding how to implement the structure) are set. However, the administrative operations (how to make the structure work) for the SSR's supervision of the NSSF is not developed. The SSR is a young structure, which faces high turnover in staff.
